

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A stopper layer having an etching rate that is lower than a reactive ion etching rate of the insulating layer is provided between the lower core layer and the insulating layer. With this arrangement, a groove that fully reaches the lower core layer can be formed in the insulating layer, and a lower magnetic pole layer can be formed by being properly grown by plating in the groove.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO